

Disability Inclusive Ministry Checklist for Churches

1

Preparing your church

- Create an Inclusion Committee to discuss matters of inclusion and any barriers to participation.
- Assess your church's current situation:
 - Complete a congregational survey to find out the needs of people with disability in the church and to assess your church's readiness for intentional disability ministry.
 - Complete a physical assessment of your church's buildings and services.

2

Getting started

- Create a plan for first steps towards inclusion based on results of your congregational survey and physical assessment of church's buildings and services.
- Consider seeking disability inclusive training for your leadership and congregation. Contact the Ministry Leader at Our Place to discuss potential disability training workshops for your church (ministryleader@ourplacecc.org.au).

3

Engaging your congregation

- Communicate your vision and plan to your congregation for taking steps towards greater disability inclusion.
- Begin to consider how this vision will be applied in different areas of your church ministry such as youth ministry, Sunday services, Bible study groups, etc.
- Enlist help and guidance from congregational members with experience of disability/passion for inclusion.

4

Removing barriers

- Set priorities and work towards eliminating barriers to participation in your church (to be done by your Inclusion Committee).
- Regularly provide updates on progress to church leadership and the whole church (to be done by your Inclusion Committee).
- Provide opportunities for church leadership and the whole church to give feedback (to be done by your Inclusion Committee).

5

Promoting your ministry

- Communicate your vision beyond your church's walls. Make your commitment to disability inclusion clear in:
 - your social media messaging
 - your website
 - your videos, slides, emails, and other digital collateral
 - your church grounds signage
